Dear Boys & Girls Clubs Coach,

Thank you for volunteering to be a part of the Boys & Girls Clubs Athletics program. Since 1966, our organization has reached tens of thousands of youth through team sports that promote positive health and growth for every participant.

Being a Coach is like being a musician. Your philosophy, your style comes a lot from your influences and how those influences are interpreted. Some might believe players, especially younger players, should not be coached, but allowed to develop by themselves; other coaches might believe players should be nurtured carefully from an early age to avoid the development of bad habits and particular weaknesses.

A Coach’s view (or personal philosophy) is based on how he/she learned to play the game, on his/her present knowledge and his/her future expectations. A coaching philosophy is affected by the Coach’s beliefs, attitudes, and motives. These factors influence the reasons for someone wanting to coach and provide the perennial, moral, and ethical principles that guide his/her coaching.

With that, to again the respect of players (and parents) and take reasonable care of them, Coaches need to prepare and organize themselves thoroughly in order to organize their teams effectively and safely.

Therefore the role of a Coach with the Boys & Girls Clubs - Alaska goes well beyond that of a skilled and knowledgeable technician of the sport who is seeking to help players learn and improve in the game. Coaches might be called upon to act as a fitness trainer, a social worker, a motivator, a disciplinarian, a friend, a parent figure, a journalist, a mentor, a manager, a fundraiser, and an administrator as well as many other roles.

For some of these roles, it is important to know the Boys & Girls Clubs - Alaska Athletics Staff is a valuable resource when seeking more expert support for yourself and your players e.g. when evidence of physical abuse is disclosed to you or where a player might be experiencing financial hardship.

Coaches are also usually held in high esteem by players (and parents) and are important role models for children. The Boys & Girls Clubs - Alaska Athletics Department expects its Coaches to display high personal standards of appearance, behavior, and organization. Most importantly, Coaches should accept responsibility for the conduct of their players and encourage positive, nondiscriminatory behavior consistent with our Athletics Codes of Conduct.

Boys & Girls Clubs - Alaska has developed this publication for you, the Coach, as an insight into the responsibilities, methods, philosophies, and expectations of the organization while coaching and supporting a Boys & Girls Clubs sports team. It is our philosophy that all athletes who participate in our programs will improve their understanding of Sportsmanship, Teamwork, Attitude, and Respect. We feel these attributes transcend youth sports and set our athletes up to succeed in future endeavors. Our Coaching Staff Handbook is packed full of information and resources, which we believe can have you, the Coach, leave a lasting positive impression on the child.

Should you have any questions regarding any of the content or even suggestions for its improvement, please feel free to let me know.

Thank you for being an integral part of our sports program. We value your contribution and encourage your input.

Sincerely,

Jason Leonardis

Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska Mission
To empower and inspire the diverse youth of Alaska to reach their full potential by offering them hope, opportunity and a safe environment.

Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska Vision
To provide a positive place where boys and girls can develop the qualities needed to become responsible citizens and leaders. We will continuously improve clubhouse and athletic and childcare programs in response to changing community needs. This will be done by developing and implementing curriculum-based activities and by providing an environment that is safe, fun, and educational. Every program will enhance a members’ self-esteem development by instilling a sense of belonging, usefulness, influence, and competence.

Athletics History
A rich tradition of athletic program experiences enables BGCA to offer programs based in well-developed philosophies. During the 1960s, Babe Ruth Baseball was the Club’s first organized sport, serving boys from Anchorage, Eagle River, and both military bases. Basketball soon followed, originating as a weekly drop in activity at local schools before growing into a 900-member program by the early 1980s. In the early 1970s, BGCA agreed to coordinate the city’s youth football program, the Anchorage Youth Football League (AYFL). In 1977, both outdoor soccer and ice hockey programs were started with a girls hockey program being added in 1999. The year prior, in 1998, volleyball was reintroduced to the athletics program. Today, the BGCA athletics programs in basketball, volleyball, soccer, football, futsal, and karate serve over 3,000 youth annually.

Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska Athletics programs, throughout its history, emphasize safety, fun, fitness, teamwork, leadership, and skill development. While competition and winning may be desirable results, they are not the top priorities for BGCA Athletics programs. Our coaches are encouraged to empower each child to develop his/her talents through participation, fair play, sportsmanship, cooperation, teamwork, and effort with the goal being to help each child develop a sense of competence, usefulness, and belonging. Every child who participates in our sports programs on a regular basis, with encouragement from the coaching staff, parents, and his/her peers, should enhance his/her self-esteem, confidence, and ability to work cooperatively with others.

Coaching Staff Expectations

Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska athletic programs are designed for youth players ages U4-U18. Our programs are for children who want a quality athletic experience whether they are being introduced to the sport or have been playing for a number of years. Of course our intent is not only to develop them into better players, but also instill a passion for the sport and help guide them into positive role models into adulthood.

Dress code - Always wear appropriate athletic gear and footwear. All should have a watch.

Punctuality - Please arrive at least 15 minutes early to ensure the field/court and equipment is ready. Cones should be in a straight line, pinnies ready and other equipment moved into its proper places.

Technical Eye - The coach has the ability to see things that take place on the field/court. The coach also has an understanding and knowledgeable of what should take place on the field/court. Coach what you see and coach 1+1=2, not 3!

Player Management - The coach can unify a group of individuals and guide them in one direction. He/she is a great leader, a communicator, visionary, flexible, and inspirational. He/she respects the players and not only do they players respect the coach, they want to play for him/her.

Conduct/Expectations - Our expectations from the coaching staff should be nothing less than First Class. Prior to a session, meet with your coaching staff to get them prepared! Learn every players name on your team. Set expectations for the players. Do not let them underachieve. Use a 4:1 ratio of positive comments to one coaching point.

Attendance – It is highly recommended Head Coaches take attendance each practice and game. Attendance should be used as a reward for playtime.

Session Details - Balls should be inflated and players in their uniforms. During practice sessions, pinnies should be worn properly. Use same colored cones to mark out grids and a different color to represent a goal, or other distinctions. Minimize down time. Minimize lines of players. Use positive body language, and pay attention. If you are not instructing, you are doing something wrong…start teaching!

Evaluations – It is important that each coach gets to know each player in their group so they can provide proper feedback. It is crucial that each player has shown improvement over the duration of the season and be given a fair, honest, and positive evaluation following the commencement of the season.

Clean up - Make sure your playing area is clean after each practice and game. Have players help with clean up. At the end of the season, pinnies, cones, balls, and any other BGCA equipment must be returned to the Athletics Office.

Remember we are teachers. You have been selected because of your qualities such as punctuality, respect, skill, professionalism, and passion, to name a few. With your help, let’s make this program the best in the State, Country, and World!

• Ensuring as far as possible the safety and health of players
• Developing personal competence as a coach

*Based on the scUK Code of Conduct for Sports Coaches

These Qualities should help Coaches identify the skills and qualities needed to help players develop as people as well as players.
Critical Elements in Coaching

1. Presentation is more important than information. What you say is secondary to how you say it.

2. Speak in such ways, in such tones, with such words, in such time, with such a demeanor that players are locked in, focused on your every word. And recognize when they are not.

3. Vision is crucial for players AND coaches. Coaches should scan the field/court rather than focus solely on the individual with the ball. If you’ve had time to say it to the player on the ball...it’s too late!

4. Coaches should produce thinking players...problem solving players. Simply throwing a ball out and allowing players to learn through discovery is not the answer. Coaches have a fundamental responsibility to expedite this process BY COACHING! The game becomes the best teacher only if the teacher either A) teaches in conjunction with the game or B) realizes that he or she is limited and chooses to teach not at all.

5. Coaches should make sure what is being communicated is not only being heard by the player, but also understood: Gain player’s attention. Demand recognition of player’s comprehension (wave, nod, thumbs up, etc.). Watch for application. Correct or confirm. Repeat.

6. Gamesmanship is not arguing with the referee. As coaches we dedicate too much energy towards the officials. Bigger than that, this is simply not wise use of our energy. We are not manipulating the referee in so much as we are upsetting him/her. Do our players know the difference?

7. Coach should NOT address opposing coach or players during match.

8. Coach should NOT communicate publicly directly to or about opponent.

9. Coach should teach players to come off the field by shaking hands with replacement. This is teamwork. This is respect. This is a small gesture that goes a great distance.

10. 4:1 Positive to Instructional...We must follow this model.

11. Coach should create a professional environment which includes: looking the part by wearing appropriate athletic apparel and footwear, removing sunglasses which prohibit eye contact, requiring the team look similar in training kits or same color shirts. Holding high expectations for players is important. Coaches should be very organized in every aspect including: organization of training, communication with parents, game day preparation.

12. Coach should effectively manage players and parents. The coach is empathetic, has the ability to unify a group of individuals and lead them in one direction.

13. Coach should possess traits and characteristics such as accountability, honesty, sincerity, passion, patience, humility, confidence and tenacity to name a few. A good coach never stops learning and seeking out advice and takes advantage of additional education.

14. Ensure that training sessions look similar to the game. Do not distort the game too much in activities. Training is efficient and enjoyable. Players are active. Team and players should be improving.

15. Coach’s technical eye should be proficient. Coach should have the ability to see things that take place on the field and address them with the players.

16. Coach should know the best players in the age group and continually make efforts to recruit players. Coach is responsible for keeping logs of interaction between potential players.

“That test of a youth coach is seeing the game through the eyes of a child.” –Rinus Michels, former Coach of the Dutch National Soccer Team.

Don’t forget what it was like to be a player.

Player Development and Coaching Best Practices

“Failing to prepare is preparing to fail.” – Unknown

Children do not learn in the same way as adults, especially when the learning process involves both intellectual and physical activity. Age conditions the way a person perceives and interacts with the world and with others.

In any learning process, age is the key component in selecting appropriate content and methodology. Sport is no different. For this reason we must not train U6 players the same way as U14 players. Practice sessions must be adapted to the age of the players. Taking into consideration the characteristics of human and player development, the curriculum structured must be appropriate.

The Objective

The objective of the practice session is to prepare players for competition. The game shows the tactical, technical, physical and psychosocial development of the player.

Four Components of Coaching

Technical

All players in the team have to be individually competent and proficient in the most important skills for each position. For example, a central midfield player in soccer will need different techniques and expertise as compared to an outside back.

Tactical

This component helps the player fit into the team. A coach should aim to develop clever players, capable of adapting to the constantly changing circumstances of the game.

Physical

Strong and resilient players will provide a significant advantage to the team. A tired player will struggle to think properly and is prone to commit more errors.

Psychosocial

The player is often affected by his/her emotions. Coaches should train their players to use these emotions to their advantage and turn them into strengths and not weaknesses.

Creating a Competitive Training Environment

All four components below are interrelated with the four key points in any sport. Developing these components in the practice sessions will be essential to create an appropriate environment in order to develop top players.

Quality

This component is related to the technical side of the game. In soccer for example, a quality touch of the ball is indispensable to the tactical side of game-efficiency. Technique in soccer allows for great diversity; therefore repeating specific technical actions in a game context provides the player with a wide range of technical movements. Coaches will insist on a clean touch on the ball as well as quality technique. The same applies to all sports.

Game Understanding

This component is related to the tactical side of the game. Developing vision and game awareness is crucial from an early age. In basketball, one action is never repeated in exactly the same way and game situations change constantly. Collective practices and experience in different game situations aids the player by improving his/her knowledge of the game.

Intensity

This component is related to the physical side of the game. Practices must be performed at game intensity. Short working periods of high-intensity develops the technical quality and the quick, tactical decisions required in the game. Reproducing game intensity during training sessions is essential to the improvement of the different types of speed and endurance.

Competitiveness

This component is related to the psychosocial part of the game. Opposed and high-intensity practices are essential in the development of high-quality and competitive players. Developing committed and competitive players from an early age is an indispensable aspect in the creation of successful teams.

Practical Topic Definitions

The following definitions have been developed to ensure that you are aware of what is required of you when delivering a particular practice. If you are unsure about the expectations on you when delivering a particular practice, please seek clarification from the BGCA Director of Athletics.

Technical Practice

This is an unopposed practice with the emphasis on the development of a game technique. Challenges to the developed of the technique may be gradually introduced and will be in the form of increased or decreased time, area, target or degree of difficulty in practice depending on the rate of improvement in the players' performance.

Skills Practice

This is an opposed practice with the emphasis on developing the bond of technique and decision-making. The practice contains objectives for all players that are derived from the technical theme being practiced. Appropriate areas, the number of player’s involved and imposed 'conditions' will vary around the skill theme for development.

Functional Practice

This is a practice situation in which a player or small group of players develops an understanding of their attacking and/or defending roles, responsibilities and accompanying skills. Practice will be best sited in the area of the field where the player operates in a game and only players who are primary or secondary in the development of role understanding are involved in the practice.

Remember when it comes to coaching: Play the sport; Keep it real; Coach what you see.

Chain of Command

Any concerns questions comments should follow the chain of command designed by the Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska Athletics Department. The communication chain should progress as follows: Head Coach of the team, Athletics Operations Manager or Athletics Communications/Marketing Manager (if concern falls within their respective Position Description), Director of Athletics. Every effort must be made to adhere to the flow chart.

A parent may feel free to contact the BGCA Director of Athletics directly if the Coach(es) are doing something illegal, unethical, immoral or unsafe.
Developing Positive Relationships with Parents

Coaching youth sports is both challenging and rewarding. Coaches have a limited amount of time with their players and are often trying to motivate a roster full of players who come from a various backgrounds and experiences. Parents can be a vital resource in overcoming some of these challenges.

The role of the parent is extremely important for all young athletes. Whether it is at practice, during a game or on the ride home it essential that there is positive feedback. At practice and games players should feel that they can perform what the coach is asking them to do and not what their mother or father is asking them to do.

Boys & Girls Clubs Athletics are much like a school system. It takes time and there are many developmental aspects that have to be covered in order to eventually get the final product.

The following are a list of points that may help when communicating with parents and addressing their concerns:

• Encourage parent involvement and utilize their talents to help the team reach its goals.
• Schedule a preseason Parent (and Player) Meeting and mutually determine seasonal goals and expectations for the team.
• Select appropriate Assistant Coaches and Team Managers.
• Organize a Refreshment Brigade.
• Develop a simple communication network for changes to the schedule, cancellations, tournaments, etc. Sports Engine app is a really good resource.
• Over communicate and review the rules and regulations of the game and sport. This includes communicating the expectations for players and parents.
• Establish a decision making process that gives top priority to the welfare of the team.
• Be consistent, fair, and equal with each child. Involve the parent(s) and keep them informed about any decision concerning their child.
• Always attempt to resolve conflicts one-on-one and away from sightline and out of earshot of the children. And always follow up any conversations with an e-mail to ensure everything is documented.
• Focus on the positive, but be honest, when discussing the child. Also, it is only appropriate to talk about the parent’s child and not any other children.
• To criticize a child or allow a child to be criticized is never appropriate. Emphasize to parents at the Parent Meeting their role and the expectations.
• Remind parents at the Parent Meeting (and throughout the season) that coaches, players, and officials are human and, as such, are subject to making errors, blunders, and mistakes. If they feel a mistake has been made, please make sure they share it with the coach in a timely manner through documentation.
• Remind Parents to take 24 hours before communicating any issues or concerns they have with regards to playing time, results, mistakes, etc. And emphasize the importance of them writing their issues or concerns so it’s documented.
• Educate the Parents on the BGCA Athletics Chain of Command: Head Coach of the team, Athletics Operations Manager or Athletics Communications/Marketing Manager (if concern falls within their respective Position Description), Director of Athletics. Every effort must be made to adhere to the flow chart.
The Role of the Parent

Help Your Child Be Prepared

- Nutritional Snacks
- Hydrate – Water or Sport Drink before, during and immediately after a game
- Weather: Sun Screen, Rain / Cold Weather Gear
- Properly Inflated Ball, footwear, and clothing
- Catch the Players Being Successful!

Think of the field/court as a playground!

- Emphasize enjoyment
- Encourage your child regardless of success
- Cheer for all Children
- Applaud a good effort no matter who makes it
- It's okay to talk to other teams parents
- Be a parent – not a coach!
- Resist the urge to critique

5 Guidelines for the Sidelines

- Cheer
- Relax and Let Them Play
- Yelling Directions = Distraction
- Do NOT use VERBS!
- Remember, they are just kids having fun
- Have reasonable expectations

If you've ever driven a car with three kids screaming and fighting in the backseat, think about this: Does it tend to pull your attention away from the task at hand? Do you ever feel overloaded?

If you add more pressure to that car ride, such as an icy road, can you handle all that at once? That's exactly what coaches/parents do when they yell at kids to do something: They distract them. They create “cognitive overload.” (Pg. 161, Just Let the Kids Play)

Resolving Complaints

The Boys & Girls Clubs – Alaska want every child to have a positive experience with our athletic activities. However, we are realistic enough to accept this may not always be the case. Therefore if an unpleasant situation develops, the Boys & Girls Clubs have set up quality control vehicles to assure one hundred percent excellence, astute practitioners develop recovery methods to respond when parents/players are not completely satisfied. One complaint wipes out seven positive experiences. It is imperative to limit complaints and to recover as effectively as possible when they occur. We suggest using the following steps to address any such issues:

1. Hear out the person.
   Listen calmly and quietly as the individual presents the grievance. Be attentive and interested. When the individual feels you care and are genuinely interested in understanding the difficulty, much of the issue is diffused. Listen, acknowledge, and empathize.

2. Remain professional.
   No matter how angry the individual and how vehement the attack, retain your poise and control. Don't take the assault personally. When everyone is in attack mode, resolution is difficult.

   Empathize and relate to the concern. Bureaucracies and policies are cold and impersonal. No one likes hearing what the rules are. They're looking for answers. Let individual know that their issues and frustrations resonate with you.

4. Think before answering.
   Act, don't react. Calmness encourages calmness. Thinking allows response both to individual rationale as well as feeling. A gentle, thoughtful answer is usually well received.

5. Use all the senses in sending and receiving messages.
   Be intentional about nonverbal signals. They may send out messages of indifference or anger. There is no need to fuel the fire of an irritated individual.

6. Respond to the complaint.
   Most likely, the individual is not one hundred percent right. Unfortunately, they're not completely wrong either. Manage their displeasure in a civil, constructive way. Failure to respond or a delayed answer only makes the situation worse. Don't procrastinate.

7. Appropriately apologize.
   Let the person understand that you are genuinely sorry for their displeasure. While you may disagree regarding the facts and specific concerns, there is a place to validate and respect the individual.

8. Generate resolution.
   Produce options. Alternative vehicles of resolution may provide equitable answers. Try to be fair. Ask the individual how he/she would like to see the situation resolved. Accommodate as much as feasible.

9. Thank the person.
   Express appreciation for the opportunity to redress an unpleasant situation. Go the extra mile and see what can be done to delight and rehabilitate the relationship. Commit to service and positive answers. The complaint is a gift. It is an opportunity for improvement.

10. Follow-up.
    Review internal systems to match individual expectations as closely as possible with output. Err on the side of over-delivery. If there was one disappointed individual, there may be more. Follow-up the situations when things have calmed down to confirm the particular individual’s satisfaction with resolution.

Please follow these points when a conflict or serious concern arises. Additionally, please include the appropriate BGCA Athletics Staff Member and/or Director of Athletics on all communications with the upset individual and feel free to use them as a resource should most concerns not be resolved by this stage or even escalate even further.
