

Description of this event:

Reason to Dance, Reason for Hope is a ballroom dance competition modeled after the popular "Dancing with the Stars" television show. Local celebrities will be paired with professional dance instructors, from local ballroom dance studios, to learn and refine a ballroom and freestyle dance routine. The celebrities will then compete at an elegant event, being held at the Indiana Roof Ballroom, to win one of several awards. Three judges will score the performances. All profits for this event will go the Riley Hospital for Children of Indiana University Health located in Indianapolis, IN. The evening will begin with a silent auction, followed by a three course dinner, and then the ballroom competition. The evening will conclude with open dancing.
