OFFICIAL PROGRAM 100

1983 REUNION SETS ATTENDANCE RECORD

The cross town rivalry between the University of Puget Sound and Pacific Lutheran University means as much to the fans as it does to the players.

The crowd gathered in the Tacoma Dome was the largest paying crowd in the 58-game series which dates back to 1931. The previous record of 13,167 was set in 1977 at the Kingdome.

The two teams last met in 1979 when UPS defeated PLU 29-14. After the 1979 game they went their separate ways scheduling those whose athletic programs were similar to their own. UPS was a member of NCAA Division II and awarded scholarships on athlete's abilities. PLU, however, competed at the NAIA Division II level and the Lute scholarships were awarded on the basis of need.

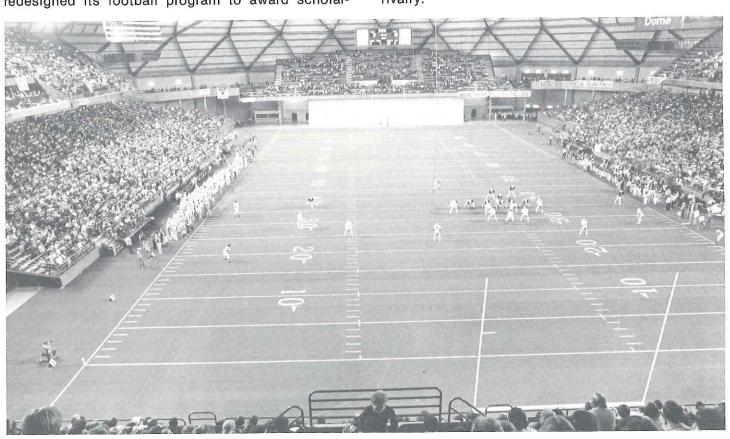

In 1983, after 16 years as an NCAA school, UPS redesigned its football program to award scholarships on the basis of need and the Loggers rejoined the NAIA. That brought the two football teams together again and what resulted is one of the most exciting come-from-behind revenge victories for PLU in the history of the series.

The fans in attendance not only saw an exciting football game but also witnessed the first-ever collegiate contest to be played in the Tacoma Dome. All agreed that there was not a bad seat in the house. Whether they sat in the sideline seats, the end zone seats or in the Gallery Restaurant, they were equally involved in the action on the field.

Dome officials also were pleased with the turnout and stated that "it was a very well-behaved crowd."

It looks like the Tacoma Dome will be the new home for the annual civil war for this cross town rivalry.

59TH GAME SPARKS 30 YEARS OF FOOTBALL MEMORIES

The largest paid attendance ever to watch a Pacific Lutheran University and University of Puget Sound football contest gathered in the Tacoma Dome last year to see a game that was played with the intensity of the Superbowl. As in any competitive rivalry, these cross-town teams went all out to mark the comeback of the annual Lute—Logger football showdown.

The record setting crowd of 14,830 was not disappointed by the action on the gridiron below. The game was not decided until the final 28 seconds in a memorable come-from-behind victory for PLU.

Ron Simonson, UPS head coach, commented before the contest that he wanted his squad to have balance but that field position and game conditions would render as the deciding factors of the game. As it turned out, the important field positions and conditions were in favor of the Lutes as their multi-defense proved to be too strong for the Loggers to chop down.

Jeff Rohr, PLU's senior sensation, found his way in and around the tight Logger defense any way he could. He carried the ball 36 times for 177 yards, he punted five times for a 40.4-yard average, he kicked off and he kicked two field goals; one to tie the game and the game-winning three pointer.

Rohr surpassed his previous game-high rushing total by nearly 50 yards and his two field goals were the first in his collegiate career. The 200 pound fullback out of Washington High School, became the PLU placekicker the day before the game when junior Todd Rosenbach was sidelined with a congenital neck vertebra problem.

Although PLU maintained the best field position throughout the game, UPS was able to take advantage of their defensive breaks to stop the Lutes from scoring on some key drives.

PLU threatened twice in the first period. They marched down to the Logger 15-yard line when UPS' Darin Smith intercepted a pass to stop the drive.

On PLU's next possession, Logger Todd deCarteret picked off a pass intended for Joel Johnson and ran 56 yards to score with 7:32 remaining in the first period. This put the Loggers in the lead 7-0.

When Rohr was stopped on a fourth and one situation, the Loggers saw opportunity and grabbed it. UPS quarterback, Kevin Reimer took to the air and moved his team into Lute territory before being stopped at the 14. Jim Beckman then kicked a 32-yard field goal to boost the Logger lead to 10.

With time running out in the half, PLU hit the scoreboard with just 48 seconds left on the clock. Quarterback Kevin Skogen connected with Randy Hamlin on an 11-yard isolation pass play to tally 6 points for the Lutes. The extra point was good and narrowed the UPS margin down to only three at half time.

Early in the second half Skogen scrambled down the field to reach the UPS 22. Four plays later, Rohr kicked his first-ever collegiate field goal (35 yards) to tie the score at 10 with 10:17 left to play in the third quarter.

The Lutes threatened to score again but were stopped by the stubborn Logger defense three times at the UPS three and two yard lines. With less than six minutes to play, PLU was forced to turn the ball over on downs.

PLU's stone wall defense forced the Loggers to punt after holding them to five yards on three plays. UPS' Grant Allen punted the ball to midfield where the Lutes began their game-winning drive. Rohr's field goal came with only 28 seconds to go in the game and put the topping on the cake with a three-point capper.

The PLU defense sparkled the entire game having held the Loggers to just five yards rushing in the first half and a total of 34 yards in the game and just seven first downs.

The victory gave PLU their first win in six years and their 12th in the series which dates back to 1931. UPS leads in the series 41-12-5.

GRID TITLE EXCHANGES

Tonight's game marks the 59th time these two cross town rivals have met on the football field. Through the years a lot of changes have taken place; the College of Puget Sound became the University of Puget Sound and Pacific Lutheran College became Pacific Lutheran University. Equipment has been modified, rules altered and added, and the game played inside and out, including Lincoln Bowl, Franklin Pierce, the old CPS field, the Kingdome and now the Tacoma Dome. Despite these rapid and modern changes, one thing has remained the same...the competitive spirit that accompanies these annual duels.

The head-to-head competition has been fierce from the beginning. Although UPS leads in the series, the victory margin over the years averages out to be only four points per game.

CPS SWEEPS 1954 SERIES

Thirty years ago the two teams collided twice and CPS was the victor in each feud. At that time, the two colleges played each other in their first and last games of the season.

The first game of 1954 looked as if it would be a scoreless tie, but two big breaks for both teams turned into lights on the scoreboard. For PLC the break came when a punt grazed the leg of a Logger and was recovered by PLC on the CPS 2-yard line. Two plays later the Lutes had a six point lead. The conversion attempt was missed and the score remained 6-0.

For CPS the break came when Dale Meshke returned the second half kickoff 79 yards into the end zone for the sole CPS tally. Quarterback Joe Stortini replaced the injured Warren Logan to kick the extra point that would eventually be the game winning point.

Before the game, Coach Heinrick emphasized the offense. After the game he commented that it was the defense that won the game and that it "got better as the game progressed."

Heinrick used the "iron man theory" in this contest; Center Bob Ehrenheim played the entire 60 minutes and seven other Loggers played at least 55 minutes of the game.

Seven weeks later, they would play their second game of the 1954 season. It would be the 20th time that the Lutes and the Loggers would meet on the football field.

This game was expected to be one of the closest games the two had ever played because both teams were so evenly matched. Despite this fact, CPS went on to win their fourth straight game against the Lutes 13-7.

This game displayed a lot more action than the previous meeting but it came in spurts. CPS quarterback Joe Stortini lofted a 41-yard pass to Tom Glump in the closing minutes of the game to set up the final Logger touchdown.

With the game tied at seven, the CPS offense searched for a secret weapon to offset the PLC defense. The Logger running game had been effective throughout the second half and PLC expected a continuation of this fierce running game. CPS, however, retaliated with an aerial attack which took the PLC defense by surprise. What was yet another surprise was the target that Stortini selected. Glump was not a likely subject because he split his playing time between the end and tackle positions. Glump caught the pass on the run and was headed for the end zone before being tackled from behind at the PLC sevenyard line. One crack at the PLC defense was all fullback Rich Dodds needed to put CPS on the scoreboard and retake the lead. Stortini's conversion attempt went wide but the Loggers were able to hang on to the six point lead despite a last chance effort from the Lutes.

With four minutes remaining in the game, PLC quarterback Tommy Gilmer lateralled to halfback Don

.. 10 TIMES IN 30 YEARS

Gaarder who threw a 20-yard pass to Brian Rice alone at the CPS 20. Had the ball not been deflected by Stortini, it surely would have been a touchdown for the Lutes.

PLC out-downed the Loggers 12-9 and out-rushed them 155-148 but the Loggers took advantage of PLC's three interceptions and two fumbles.

UPS PLU SPLIT 1964 SERIES

The September 1964 edition of the UPS PLU battle was the last time that the two teams met in Lincoln Bowl. Their next meeting would take place in the newly finished Baker Stadium on the campus of UPS.

Rumors circulating before this game stated that the battle would have to be decided up front. Both schools had gone under major rebuilding jobs after losing powerful seniors and both coaches complained of a lack of depth on their teams. This fact became evident with the low-scoring 7-6 victory for Puget Sound.

Early in the game Les Rucker scored on a 12-yard run for Pacific Lutheran, but their lead darkened when Puget Sound tackle Ron Glew picked up a fumbled PLU pitchout in the third quarter and carried the ball 24 yards to score. Glew also kicked the extra point which eventually gave the Loggers the win.

The tables were turned in the second game of the 1964 season and PLU became the victor after six straight losses to the Loggers. PLU scored in every quarter in their 27-7 victory over the Loggers and spoiled UPS' Homecoming before 3,500 fans in the new Baker Stadium.

PLU got an early break in the game when UPS quarterback Dennis Bakke fumbled for the second time and PLU tackle Dave Olson recovered on the UPS 31. Ten plays later fullback Ken Tetz went the ensuing four yards to score.

The Loggers' lone tally resulted from a bad snap over the head of PLU punter Jeff Carey and was recovered by UPS on the PLU 16. Five plays later UPS quarterback Steve Maddocks connected with Joe Peyton in the end zone.

PLU's Morris Blankenbaker returned the following kickoff 37 yards to the Logger 47 and 11 plays later quarterback Kurt yates ran the ball into the end zone on a ten-yard scamper.

PLU drove another 61 yards in the third quarter for their third touchdown. Yates connected with Jim Pederson twice for 27 yards and a touchdown during the drive. It was the first successful pass play into the end zone made against the Loggers all year.

In the fourth quarter PLU attacked with quarterback Bob Batterman at the helm, he hit Les Rucker with a 24-yard pass and then connected with Mike McKay on a 19-yard pass play. Batterman carried the ball through the Logger defense for the final 10 yards and the score.

UPS gave PLU a final threat when Maddocks hit Peyton with two successive tosses of 17- and 46-yards to move to the PLU 9-yard line but a clipping penalty sent them back to the PLU 24. Three incomplete passes and a four-yard loss turned the ball back to the Lutes as the time ran out.

PLU dominated the game by out-downing the Loggers 16-7 and outrushing them 138-50. The win was the first of six straight in a drive that was to carry PLU to the Evergreen Conference throne in their last season of EvCo play.

LUTES SNAP LOGGER WIN STREAK IN 1974

PLU snapped the eight game Logger win streak against them in their 38-27 victory in 1974. PLU forced UPS into an early catch-up role when PLU scored twice in two minutes.

UPS' Doug Gall rushed 22 times for 168 yards and two touchdowns while quarterback Clay Angle added 110 yards in 12 carries and two touchdown passes to Rich Arena.

PLU quarterback, Rick Finseth made 11 completions in 19 tosses 3 of which were touchdowns. PLU scored again late in the game on a Les Higgins 43-yard field goal which broke the school record.

WHAT'S IN STORE FOR 1984?

The 1984 UPS squad will build from the foundation laid by the 1983 Evergreen Conference Champion team. Eighteen of last year's players were lost to graduation so this year's team will be quite young in some areas and yet strong in others. The Loggers plan to use the experiences gained from last year's Evergreen competition as a guide to see them through an equally rewarding season this year.

The emphasis for PLU this year will be on defense. The Lutes lost their starting backfield to graduation and will have to undergo a major rebuilding job to replace these vacant positions. Eight starters return from the stop-squad ranked fourth nationally against the rush. The Lutes begin the 1984 season coming off of a successful 1983 campaign, they finished second nationally in the NAIA.

CLIFF OLSON: FATHER OF PLU SPORTS

Most people recognize Cliff Olson's name after having watched basketball games or graduated from high school in his namesake auditorium. Behind the name is more than the man who was formerly the PLU Athletic Director, but also the father of PLU sports.

Olson came to Pacific Lutheran University in 1929 and remained on campus until 1948 as the Lute's Athletic Director and coach of football, basketball, baseball, golf, tennis, and track. Not only did he dominate PLU athletics but also small college athletics in the Northwest.

Olson's greatest achievement is when he coached the PLU Knight football team. His squad practiced on a rocky, dirt field called "Parkland Pebbles," behind Harstad Hall on campus, which was entirely inadequate for the intercollegiate program he had in mind.

The squad even passed the hat at football games at old Lincoln Bowl to raise enough money to help finance the athletic program Olson intended to build.

In the first season, Olson's football team beat the University of Puget Sound reserves twice and Bellarmine High School once. It lost to Lincoln, Stadium and Centralia Junior College.

Olson as a player

By the time Olson left Parkland, he had established PLU's athletic program by producing two All-Americas, Marv Harshman and Marv Tommervick, and leading the Lutes through an eight game winning streak (1939-1941) with two wins over a national power, Gonzaga.

PLU record books list Olson's football record as having won 64, lost 33, and tied six including the school's first undefeated 8-0 won-lost record. Cliff Olson did more than coach winning teams, nonetheless. He had a pronounced effect on the lives of players, families, and friends who came in contact with him.

"Cliff drove us hard; himself harder," Marv Harshman, now University of Washington basketball coach, once said. "He was a difficult man to get to know. But we all loved him, and we played our hearts out for him."

"When you played for him, the thing that impressed you the most was how physical he was and how intent he was about everything he did, even the simple things like calisthentics and getting ready for practice," he said.

Harshman added, "the thing that has stuck with me through my coaching career was his concern about the individual. The game was important to him, naturally. He was extremely competitive, but no game ever superceded any player.

"At the time I played for him," he said, "we always felt Cliff was fair but extremely tough, a genuine taskmaster."

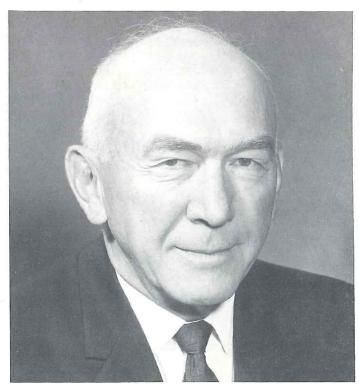

Harshman said Olson was tough to get to know, "but by the time we were seniors, we found what a terrific friend he was.

"Money was a tough situation when I was in school," he said, "but Cliff kept digging down in his pocket to help some poor boy stay through the semester. You never read this side of the man in the newspaper."

If current students could have seen Cliff Olson in action, they would have seen him leaping around on the sidelines during a game, hugging players, shouting instructions and encouragement.

Olson expected a lot from his players, from being well-groomed and neat to being decent and humble. "Lots of us feel we wouldn't have accomplished anything if it had not been for him," Harshman closed off.

Perhaps Cliff Olson's credo taught his players their most valuable lesson and that was "excellence." He said, "to be excellent was to be a winner both on and off the field." Cliff Olson certainly is the paragon of excellence, both as a coach and a man.

COACHING STAFF

Head Coach: Ron Simonson

Coaches: Myles Corrigan, Tom Mays, Paul Wallrof

Assistant Coaches: Kevin Reimer, Todd deCarteret, Craig Morse

Trainer: Jim "Zeke" Schuldt

RON SIMONSON

Ron Simonson, Logger head football coach for six years, will bring his 48-14 record into a season that is looking to defend their 1983 Evergreen Conference Championship. In his 11 years at UPS, he has successfully led the Loggers through five seasons at the NCAA Division II level and last season in NAIA Division II. During his reign as head coach, Simonson has chalked up a 2-1 record against PLU.

DR. RICHARD ULRICH

Dr. Ulrich is the Logger's new Athletic Director and comes to the Northwest from Adam State College in Alalosa, Colorado. He was the director of men's and women's intercollegiate sports and the department chair of Health and Physical Education for 11 years. He also was the head wrestling coach, head and assistant football coach. Dr. Ulrich was chosen as an Outstanding Educator of America in 1975.

1984 UPS CAPTAINS

DICK CRABB—Linebacker 6'1", 216 lbs., Cheney

Crabb was injured much of the year, but the fourth year junior is ready to return for the 1984 season. Coach Simonson described him as an outstanding leader. In preseason training, Crabb is benching 315 pounds.

BRAD GOBEL—Defensive Back 5'8", 169 lbs., Tacoma (Mt. Tahoma HS)

Gobel led his high school team to a state championship and is returning for the Loggers as #2 in interceptions. He started his college career as a quarterback, switched to receiver and then to safety. Last year he was named as honorable mention All-Conference Defensive Back.

Hombach enters this season as a junior and as Simonson described him, "a strong leader." In his pre-season performance, Hombach benches 335 pounds.

ROY MEDLEY—Quarterback 6'2", 199 lbs., Issaquah (Liberty HS)

Medley is a Logger third year quarterback. Simonson said he is a hard-working athlete and a veteran leader on the team.

JOHN HEINRICK: "DEAN OF COACHES"

"I've had great coaches in my lifetime, but I have always called coach Heinrick, 'Coach,'" said Joe Stortini, Pierce County Council Member and District Chair, "He's the dean of coaches." The former University of Puget Sound quarterback claimed that out of the number of coaches in the Northwest today, the majority of them were players from the "coach" Heinrick days.

John Heinrick, former head football coach at UPS since 1948, outranks all other coaches in the state in vears of service. In his 17 years at UPS, Heinrick's football teams won 88, lost 46, and tied 11. His lifetime coaching career is rooted in stays at Bellarmine and Stadium High Schools. From 1927 through 1961, Heinrick's gridiron career stretched over 38 seasons with a record between the three schools of

"Two hundred football victories aren't the easiest thing in the world to come by," Heinrick once said. He went to UPS in 1947 as basketball coach and in 1948 added football and athletic directing to his duties. During his Logger coaching career, his football teams won or shared the Evergreen Conference championship five times.

Wins are not the only indicator of Heinrick's success as a coach. He was elected to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic Football Coaches Hall-Of-Fame in the charter group of five that joined in 1957. He was voted into the Pierce County Sports Hall-Of-Fame in 1959 and he was chosen as the first honorary coach of the Methodist University and College All-America squad in 1962.

Although the entirety of Heinrick's awards and coaching endeavors surpass the previous list, his fame is echoed throughout the state as being the

"epitome of coaches."

Heinrick had said, "sure, I advise my players to go into coaching if they are so inclined, but I also tell them that if they are not accomplishing their main youngsters become job-helping citizens—they should get out within a few seasons."

He added, "my idea from the start was to be a teacher as well as a coach to make men out of kids, and it is a good feeling to know that you have done that."

Stortini said, "I learned to be a good person and I'm glad I had the opportunity to play fours years of football and learn in his classes.

"Heinrick's philosophy was that he expected the best from you no matter if you were on the field or in class."

Stortini said the key to "Coach's" philosophy was that "he always taught us to win because when you play to win, you always do your best. But you never get hung up when you lose because you still learn from the experience."

Gary Hersey, who played basketball and football for two years as a Logger quarterback between 1947 and 1951, described Heinrick as stern but well respected.

Hersey also played at Stadium High School when Heinrick coached one of the Tigers' "unscored" upon football teams. Hersey said, "he was respected by his high school players as much as by the college players."

He recalled a story that exemplified the kind of respect Heinrick received. "In high school we (Stadium) had the tradition to play Lincoln at the end of the football season. The week before the big game, Heinrick told us that he didn't want to see us talking to any girls between then and game time. We did what he said and I didn't talk to my girlfriend during that whole week. You certainly wouldn't see that happening today."

Coach John Heinrick obviously impressed the young players who came in contact with him either during high school or college. If a phrase were to sum Heinrick's character as a coach and teacher it would be as Hersey said, "Heinrick is a great guy!"
