Petition to “Try Up”

Some CVLL divisions allow players of a younger age to play up if their playing ability is considered to be a level appropriate for safe and effective participation with older players.

Seven (7) year old players may request to be considered for the Minor National Division.

Eight (8) year old players may request to be considered for the Minor American.

All player requesting to be considered for a higher division must try out with the age groups for that division (7 year olds with the 8s; 8 year olds with the 9s).

There are no guarantees providing for the player to play up. The player must be drafted into the appropriate league.

Parents should also understand that there are no requirements regarding positions, number of innings played, or number of at-bats for these players other than that which is in accordance with Little League and the CVLL rules of the particular division.

Younger players playing up in older divisions may not be physically able to compete with all players within that division, and, as such, accept that risk by agreeing to be considered to move up.
