

Volleyball has had a huge impact on my life. I started playing when I was younger, and over the years it has taught me so much more than just how to play a sport. It has taught me discipline, teamwork, and how to push myself even when things get tough. Volleyball has helped me grow as a person and has given me confidence both on and off the court.

Next fall I will be attending South Dakota State University, where I am very excited to continue playing volleyball. Being able to compete at the next level is something I have worked toward for many years, and I am incredibly grateful for the opportunity.

In college, I plan to major in business, possibly focusing on marketing and consumer behavior. I am interested in learning more about how businesses connect with people and how marketing influences the decisions people make every day.

Paying for college is something that can be stressful, and this scholarship would make a big difference for me and my family. It would help take some of the financial pressure off while I focus on my education and volleyball. I am very thankful for any support that helps me continue working toward my goals at South Dakota State University.
